Workmen at the Dunbar furnace were made happy Saturday afternoon when announcement was made that furnace No. 2 would be fired last night. At midnight the torch was applied and the stack was lighted. For several weeks there has been a total suspension of work aside from repairs at the stacks of the Dunbar furnace company. The No. 2 stack was to have been fired last Thursday, but a scarcity of water at that time made it impossible to put the stack in operation.

The heavy rain of Friday night and Saturday morning, however, heaped the water supply at the plant and the stack was placed in operation at midnight.

Lieutenant W. B. Powell of the Baltimore & Ohio police force left on No. 6 this morning in company with Detective Coleman of the Pittsburgh police force expecting to locate Robert Robson near Meyersdale. Robson is wanted for the murder of Policeman Hanson in Pittsburgh, October 9.

Railroad men reported that a man answering Robson's description had been seen about two miles from Meyersdale. He was identified by one man and when asked whether he considered himself safe, showed a big revolver with which he expects to defend himself if an attempt is made to arrest him.

The Pittsburgh police were notified and Superintendent McQuillan detailed Detective Coleman to make the arrest. At this point Captain E. S. Russell of the Baltimore & Ohio police force detailed Lieutenant Powell to aid Coleman.

The officers are aware of the desperate character of the man they seek and are prepared for a vicious fight before making the arrest.

IMPROVEMENT IN DAVIDSON MINE; NEW STABLES AND TELEPHONES.

Stock Employed in the Mine Now Stays Underground on West Side of the River When Not Working.

Company Chartered to Operate the New B. & O. Stockyards.

The Connelville Stockyards Company, capitalized at $150,000, has been granted a New Jersey charter. The incorporators are Charles A. Kinney of Suspension Bridge, N. Y., Charles P. Starker of Dunellen, N. J., and Louis P. Hanson of Plainfield, N. J.

The company is incorporated to do a general stock yards business. None of the incorporators are known locally. It is presumed that they will operate the stock yards being built by the Baltimore & Ohio railroad at this point to meet the requirements of the new railroad regulations regarding the feeding and exercising of stock in transit. It is also supposed that the company will conduct a general business here in connection with the stock yards.

The new mine stables of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, in Davidson shaft were opened for use of the underground stock Saturday and the horses and mules that formerly were taken back and forth each day from the opening on the West Side will remain underground when not at work.

The new stable is thoroughly modern and capable of caring for 25 head of horses and mules.

Besides the new stables a telephone system has just been installed in the Davidson mine connecting every landing in the mine with the office of Superintendent R. C. Beechwerfer at Davidson. This system is a private one and the Mine Foreman or assistants can get immediate connection from almost any point in the mine with the office. The establishment of communication by telephone between the workings in the mines and the office is a great time saver in many instances, it being possible thereby to secure orders on work that saves delay and besides it will prove timely in case of accident.

The new stables are cut out of the solid coal. The walls of the stables are formed of the coal while the floors are paved with brick. Through the stables there is an air circulation of 10,000 cubic feet per minute supplied by the mine fan. The stables are neatly whitewashed. The managers are made of iron pipe and iron feed boxes are provided. A day's supply of feed is also kept in the stable. Electric light supplied by the West Penn Electric Light Company is used in the stables and water from the Connelville Water Company is piped down the West Side slope. The stables are located at the foot of the slope, about 300 feet from the West Side entrance. The stock that is now employed in Davidson shaft will not see daylight perhaps for months. It is only when there is a suspension of work or the animals are in poor condition that they are brought out.

A HEAVY FROST

Fell This Morning and Thin Skin of Ice Formed.

The first frost of the season proved a killing one. It covered the coke region like a blanket during the night and traces of it remained for some time after sunrise. There was also a big drop in the mercury and this morning was like a day in midwinter. The temperature was 41 at 5 o'clock and was several degrees lower earlier in the morning.

Relief Party Will Search for Missing Balloon

United Press Telegram.

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Relief parties are being organized to search the Canadian wilderness for Hawley and Post of the America, the only balloon of the 10 which left St. Louis a week ago falling to report.

William Hawley, brother of the aeronaut, and E. L. Stoddard, an intimate friend, are on their way to Ottawa. They received a dispatch from St. Louis stating the balloons landed north of Kiskiskim, Quebec, in the wilderness of Lake St. John district. The rescuers will conduct an expedition through the wilderness there.

The only other explanation of the fate of the men, if the dispatch is incorrect, is that the balloon dropped into Lake Huron and its passengers drowned.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 24.—The Dussel lost the international balloon race, according to the revised figures of the Aero Club today. They reported Saturday night and their landing place is measured 1,240 miles away. This beats the Germans by 40 miles.

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a yellow check, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so that the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum but a medicine of known composition and with a record of 40 years of success. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.

This Time Its Overcoats

With WINTER just around the corner the thoughtful man will think of that NEW OVERCOAT. That's just what we want to talk to him about.

We're more pleased, yes, proud of our new Overcoats—cause to be—never such a showing here—or in Connellsville as will greet the eyes at the MOSS TAILORING COMPANY at this moment.

REASON ONE—The style, dignity and fit distinguished garments made here. The forceful suggestion of perfection, too.

REASON TWO—The value is here. WE KNOW CLOTH AND WE KNOW TAILORING by practical experience.

AS TO MATERIALS—We'll tell you some of them: There's the new snappy Tans, Oxfords and the Cheviots. Then, we have the imported English Tweeds and the St. George Kerseys in stripes. For the conservative man we have the black or blue Kerseys, Cheviots, Melton's, etc.

Ample variety range and our proverbial prompt service. Satisfaction guaranteed. Notwithstanding the sharp advance in the price of clothes, our popular prices for Overcoats and Suits remain the same as ever.

$15, $18, $20, $22, $22.50

BIGGEST CROWD IN SCOTSDALE.

No Preliminary Meeting
Equalled One for Halloween Celebration.

ALL OTHER TOWNS INVITED IN

Henry Keister, an Old and Respected Citizen Suffers Serious Fall—Mrs.
Godfrey Keister in Critical Condition—Community Wide Prayer Meetings Every Morning.

Special to The Courier.

SCOTSDALE, Oct. 24.—In all meetings for public celebration in Scottdale in the past there has never been a meeting to equal in numbers and enthusiasm the one held at the Borough building Saturday evening. In the interests of the celebration of the Hallowe'en festival for next Saturday evening. The organization took the name of the Hallowe'en Association.
There were 35 members of the committee present, and while not a great deal was done apparently everyone reported an unequalled interest in the coming celebration. Burgess R. F.
Ellis presided and reported that a number had signified to him their heartily support of the proposition and that they will take part in the festivities. They also accorded him support in the rules and regulations laid down by the committee that no confetti, talcum powder, slap sticks, feather dusters or such things be permitted. This feature has always been eliminated by the town's celebration in the past and also by the Firemen whenever they held a carnival.

Chief Edward McGinnis of the Volunteer Fire Department was present and reported that all the firemen in uniform would be on hand to act as police with the Borough and Mills forces. The music committee reported that there would be three brass bands and the Firemen's Drum Corps to make music, and possibly a second drum corps if the members could be secured. Several of them are the busiest on Saturday evenings. The various industrial establishments are prepared to make a good showing, and the fraternal organizations have signified their intention to take part.
C. H. Uery and J. S. Johnson who have the official program reported that they had taken it around among most of the business people, "feeling each one as they could, and that they had filed the original program of 51 pages, but that they needed another sheet to the program in order to accommodate those who wished to be numbered. The program is headed with the significant sentiment, "All these people have a safe and sane Hallowe'en." Messrs. Johnson and Uery started out with the program after the meeting and secured several other names. Each page costs $1.
The prizes to be offered will all be bought this year, unless some merchant or other person desires to donate a prize, in which case their contribution will be thankfully accepted and full credit given them on the program. Chief Marshall John H. Gordon also reported that everything was moving along well. He desires all interested who expect to take part in the parade to notify him by phone at the Car Shops in the day or the Borough building in the evening. Thus a program will be printed giving the formation of the parade. Nearly everyone there gave the most optimistic reports, and judging from past years when no such large organized movement was on and the big crowd that was out this year's meeting indicates that the celebration will far surpass any public celebration of any kind ever held in Scottdale. All surrounding towns are invited to be present. The members of the Province committee which were appointed for the various industries will start today to take a collection up among the men. Anything will be accepted, a dime, a quarter or any other piece of money. As the date was set this year on a Saturday so that all the industrial workers would be free it is anticipated that quite a good amount of money will result from this. The meeting adjourned until Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock sharp.

Teak a Straw Vote.
After the Hallowe'en meeting on Saturday evening J. W. Fitzsimmons suggested a straw vote on Governor, which was taken by secret ballot, he gathering the ballots, and regular voters being appointed. The result was Burr, 26; Tener, 1; and two not voting for any candidate.

Had a Bad Fall.
Henry Keister, a well known farmer and Civil War veteran, was the victim of a serious accident on Saturday. Mr.
Keister was carrying some shingles up to repair a shed roof about 15 feet from the ground, when he fell. He managed to get to the house, although he has no remembrance of anything from the time he fell until he was taken into the house. Mrs. Keister and their daughter found the father lying in the doorway where he had crawled to and fainter, and he was taken into the house. He was badly shaken up and very sore, and it is not known yet whether or not he was injured internally. Mr. Keister is one of the oldest and most respected of citizens and numerous friends will learn with regret of his accident.

Morning Prayer Meetings.
At exactly 10 o'clock Saturday forenoon the whistles of town sounded, led by the long blast of the fire whistle on the furnace, chimed in with by the church bells. It was the call to prayer. During the week at the signal all religious people will spend a moment or more in prayer, wherever they may be. Group prayer meetings will also be held at the same time.

This is a part of the religious revival which is going over the town. The fire whistle was blown but the one in order to cause inquiry, but it will not be blown again, as it is properly only a signal of fire or an earthly sort, not as a signal to prepare to escape the brimstone pit.

Mrs. Keister Stricken?
Mrs. Godfrey Keister, for many years a resident of the Morgan valley, who is now residing with Mr. and Mrs. John Keister of Broad Ford, is suffering from a severe stroke of apoplexy. As soon John Keister of near town was to see her on Saturday evening and said that his mother's condition was serious.

Boyd Feeling Good.
Derley H. Boyd was home on Saturday and feeling quite comfortable over his third victory over the D. B. Sullivan crowd who have been fighting him so hard ever since Boyd turned up the Arnold ballet mess which robbed him of the nomination and that Sullivan on ticket instead. This is the last day for the Secretary of the Commonwealth to certify the names of the candidates, and Boyd's name will appear on the Republican assembly ticket for this district. The refusal of the supreme court to satisfy Sullivan's attorneys after two lower courts had decided in favor of Boyd was the last straw on them.

Dr. Risk Preached.
Dr. J. B. Risk, pastor of the Union town Methodist Episcopal church, got in here late Saturday night from Philadelphia and stopped off with his old friend, Rev. R. D. Mansell, D. D., and preached for that gentleman in the First Methodist Episcopal church yesterday morning. Dr. Risk gave one of his glowing sermons in which he dealt with public men, and as an example of the militant public leader.

Churches Busy Day.
The Evangelistic meetings yesterday were among the most successful and largely attended of any that have been held. In response to a large number of petitions Evangelist Davis repeated his address "Some Things a Woman Ought to Know" to an audience such as has never been seen here before. Long before nine for the service to begin in the afternoon the Presbyterian church was jammed full of women and several hundred were unable to gain admittance.

Several hundred women stood in the entrance hall, the aisles and other standing places and quite a number sat on the floor throughout the service.
The address was practically the same as given here before with some new facts and illustrations added. At the M. E. church Mrs. J. A. Mills conducted the service. Long before nine for the address on the responsibility of mothers reached the hearts of the listeners with convincing power. A large number at both services expressed the purpose to live better lives.
In the evening the attendance was so large that services were held at two churches, the Presbyterian and M. E., which were both filled to their capacity. Both services were nearly the same in character. Evangelist Davis preached the same sermon "In both places and Mrs. J. A. Mills and Mr. Carr assisted in both services." A feature was the solo, "The Ninety and Nine," by Mr. Mills, who sang it in a manner reminiscent of the time when Ira D. Sankey made this hymn famous by his historic singing. Mr.
Davis preached an unusually strong sermon on the text "And We Came to Kadesh Barnea." He compared the journeys of the Israelites through the wilderness to the up and down life that most people lead. He showed how a full surrender leads one into a life of victory which he likened to the land of promise. A large number expressed a desire to surrender their lives to God and at the close the evangelist held a short altar meeting for recent converts and those who wished to know the plan of salvation at the Baptist church and a large number were present at this helpful service.

NEW SANATORIUM

Being Erected by the State at Cresson, Penna.

CRESSON, Pa., Oct. 24.—The new State Sanatorium for tuberculosis is being constructed under the supervision of State Health Commissioner Samuel G. Dixon on the property giving on the commonwealth by Andrew Carnegie. When completed it will accommodate 320 patients and the wards will be so arranged as to permit easy extension. The first story of the on-fire structure is of sandstone, found on the property. "The second is timbered and the roof will be of asbestos shingles."

The sanatorium site, about 2,400 feet above the sea level, is sufficiently far from all industries to have pure air for the patients to breathe. The summers are cool and the winters long and unbroken, yet the transportation of coal, etc., will be less than at the Mount Alto Sanatorium.

At these two State institutions the poor will receive the ideal treatment for tuberculosis. They will not suffer under the disadvantages of city hospitals, where their names would be constantly fretted by the smoke and dust so common to all large municipalities.

TENER'S REPLY TO CHARGES.

Republican Candidate for Governor Issues Statement.

COURTS JUDICIAL INQUIRY

Statement Comes After Conference With Republican Leaders in Philadelphia—Says He Is Ready to Meet His Detractors Before Court.

Philadelphia, Oct. 24.—After an all day conference with Senator Penrose, State Senator McNickel, State Chairman Henry F. Walton, Francis Brown counsel for the Republican organization, and other Republican political leaders, John K. Tener, Republican candidate for governor, has issued a statement in reply to charges against him.

After detailing his connection with the National Public Utilities corporation and the Security Life and Annuity company of Chicago Mr. Tener concludes his statement as follows:

"I know that certain interests are striving to induce someone to be the 'tool' to issue, for political effect, a warrant for my arrest. For the proper condemnation of such conduct I confidently appeal to the sense of fairplay of the electors of Pennsylvania and challenge by detractors to proceed, I court any judicial investigation, for I am ready to meet any and all accusations in a court of justice instead of trying to answer hidden foes who are striving every point to accomplish, for political purposes, my business and political ruin."

Statement in Part.

"The statement in part follows:
"In December of last year I was visited in Washington by William L.
Christman, an attorney of Philadelphia, and F. L. Smart, who requested me to become president of the National Public Utilities corporation. I had favorably known Mr. Smart for some time but, not knowing Mr. Christman, made inquiry and learned that he was a lawyer of excellent reputation and with good business connections. I also learned that other reputable men were directors.

Informed Company Was O. K.
"I was also informed that the company had been incorporated according to law, was properly organized and could legitimately carry on the business for which it was intended, which was the building of a railroad from Astoria to a point beyond Seaside in the state of Oregon. After this I concluded to accept the presidency and served in that office and as director during the first quarter of this year, but as my labors in congress were daily increasing, because of important legislation then pending which required practically all of my time, I resigned from the company.
For some reason or other my resignation was not accepted at the time I tendered it but I received no salary as president except for the months of January and February, although entitled to the salary for March.

Returned Stock.
"Fifty thousand dollars par-value of the stock was sent to me and I immediately returned it with a letter stating that I would not accept it, as I had not earned it and was not entitled to it. A little later $20,000 par value of the stock was sent to me, which I also returned, for the same reason.

"I never prompted the National Public Utilities corporation; was not a participant in its promotion; never sold any of its stock or solicited anybody to buy any of its stock. My connection with it was entirely honorable and straightforward, as I have above described.

"Concerning my connection with the Security Life and Annuity company, with others, I sold my stock some years ago and soon after, at the request of the company's president, W.
O. Johnson of Chicago, I again became a member of its board of directors and still serve in that capacity. The company is and always has been eminently successful."

TRAIN KILLS LABOR LEADER

Patrick Dolan, Former District President of Miners, Meets Unlikely End.
Pittsburg, Oct. 24.—Patrick Dolan, formerly president of District No. 5, United Mineworkers of America, with headquarters in this city, and one of the best known labor leaders in the country, was struck by an express train at the Fourth avenue station of the Panhandle railroad and died a few minutes later in the morgue.

Mr. Dolan arrived at the station just as the train was about to pull out to go to his home at Midway. As he tried to catch the handle of a car Dolan stumbled and fell between the rails and the platform. He was dragged down a distance of twenty-five feet before the train could be stopped.
When lifted from the ground the right side of Dolan's face was crushed and torn, his skull fractured and his right hand badly lacerated.

Use of Telephone on Railroads

For the Despatching of Trains.

Within a remarkably short time since the first experiments were made, the system of despatching trains by telephone has been developed to a high state of efficiency. In all sections of the country the telephone is now supplanting the telegraph as a means of directing the movement of railroad traffic.

Not only is the telephone used for despatching, but it is now possible for trains on the road to communicate with headquarters at any time. If a passenger train or freight train, or locomotive breaks down, or if some accident happens to a car, the conductor can make a connection with wires along the line of the road and summon relief at once. All he has to do is to lift his portable telephone apparatus out of the train and run up an extension pole to the wires overhead.
Then, for all practical purposes, he is as close to the dispatcher or division superintendent as if they stood together in the same office.

One of the railroads, the Lehigh Valley, now reports that it has equipped almost its entire line with telephone apparatus, and that the telegraph will be abandoned for despatching purposes. First the company made experiments with phones on its Mahanoy and Hazleton Division, in the Lehigh valley region of Pennsylvania.
These were so successful that it was promptly decided to extend the system over the other divisions of the road.

Everything that expedites the movement of trains is a benefit to travelers and shippers, and so the telephone can now receive the credit for rendering one more valuable service to the American public. It is one of the many agencies—such as double tracking, the construction of more powerful locomotives, and reduction of grades—which have tended to make railroad operation more efficient in recent years.

The new system on the Lehigh Valley has even exceeded the hopes of the officials. It is found that the constant connection between the despatcher and offices along the line is much less subject to delays than it formerly was. Whenever he desires the despatcher may talk directly to engineers and conductors; and this is found very useful in making instructions absolutely clear with the minimum waste of words and time.

Strict rules govern the sending and receiving of all messages. Numbers of trains and engines and the names of stations must first be pronounced distinctly and then spelled out in full.
The person at the receiving end writes out the order from the despatcher exactly as if it were received by telegraph.

By a device known as a "selector," the Lehigh Valley despatcher can call any office he chooses without calling other offices. In a general way the "selector" may be compared to the face of a clock, with the names of stations in place of the hours. Pointing the hand or indicator to "Allentown," for example, the despatcher rings up that place without disturbing

CARRIAGE WATER TO MINES.

Herules Measures Necessary to Keep Up Mining.

Unable to secure enough water to make steam, mining companies around Derry, Pa., and in the Allegheny Mountains have been forced to secure their water supply from tank trains on the Pennsylvania railroad, and trains are going to and from the mines continuously with enormous loads of water. The long drought has dried up watercourses in the mountains.

The same difficulty was met by the coal companies last year. During the fall several trains were busy all the time hauling water to the mines. This year about 50 tank cars are in continuous use. Each tank car carries from 40,000 to 50,000 gallons of water.
While the water tanks are being emptied at the mines other trains filled at the water plants supplied from

STATE FIGHTING WHITE PLAGUE.

Pennsylvania Department of Health's Exhibit on Tour of State.

ARE TEACHING THE PEOPLE

Health Commissioner Dixon is Educating the Masses to the Dangers of Tuberculosis and Showing Them
How to Guard Against It.

A splendid educational work is being done by the Pennsylvania Department of Health's Tuberculosis Exhibit that is on a tour through the state. It is practically the same exhibit which won such great praise from the distinguished scientists from all over the world who attended the recent International Congress on Tuberculosis at Washington.

At the close of the congress the exhibit was taken to Harleburg and was shown during the legislative session, at which time it was also seen by visitors to the state capitol from many parts of the country.

The exhibit is only instructive in the lessons it teaches as to the dangers of tuberculosis, but it shows the general plan of the remarkable battle which the state, through its Department of Health, is waging against this disease. For this battle Pennsylvania gave the department in 1907 $1,000,000. With complete confidence in the conduct of Health Commissioner Dixon's campaign the legislature of 1909 increased this amount to $2,000,000 for the two years beginning Jan. 1. Governor Stuart, to whom untold praise must ever be given for his vigorous support of the war against tuberculosis and his interest in health work in general, gave his approval to this appropriation, and Pennsylvania took a still further lead in the world-wide combat with the "Great White Plague."

The present plan of the state governmental anti-tuberculosis work may be summarized under the following headings:

First—The collection and tabulation of statistics relating to tuberculosis through official morbidity and mortality reports of each individual case.

Second—The establishment of one or more sanatoria for the treatment of incipient cases, including infirmaries for advanced and hopeless cases.

Third—The establishment of dispensaries in each county of the state for the care of cases which cannot avail themselves of sanatorium treatment, including home visitations and the study of occupational conditions.

Fourth—The maintenance of pathological laboratories for the free examination of sputum and tuberculin reactions and biological laboratories for the possible development of immunative and curative products.

Fifth—The restriction of tuberculosis by the disinfection of rooms, buildings (private and public), conveyances and carriers, and by supervision and regulation over the general avenue of infection.

Sixth—The dissemination of knowledge relative to the communicability, care and prevention of tuberculosis.

The collection and tabulation of statistics relating to tuberculosis is the most essential work in the campaign against this disease as it is the war against all communicable diseases. The law of the commonwealth now requires that a physician shall report to the health authorities each and every case of tuberculosis occurring in his practice.

For if any of the features of the exhibit attract more interest than the relief model of the grounds and buildings of the Pennsylvania State South Mountain Sanatorium near Mont Alto, it shows so graphically the wonderful region of mountain places and breezes, and sun-bathed plateau where Pennsylvania's tuberculosis poor are being cured for.

This sanatorium comprises 650 acres, and is located in Franklin county, near Mont Alto, on a plateau of the Blue mountains, with an average elevation of about 1800 feet above the sea level. Its topography and climatic conditions render it particularly well adapted for the treatment of tuberculosis, while its geographical location makes it so admirably situated from all parts of the state. This sanatorium had its inception in an appropriation by the legislature of Pennsylvania in 1903 of the sum of $3000 to the Commissioner of Forestry, to be used for the treatment of tuberculosis sufferers, and a further appropriation in 1905 of $15,000.

Tuberculosis costs the state of Pennsylvania $5,000,000 a year. These figures assume very startling proportions when they are compared with the annual value of certain agricultural products of the state, as is done on one of the many interesting and instructive charts shown in the exhibit.

From the chart shown in the accompanying photograph it will be seen that the annual value of hay and corn to the people of Pennsylvania is only something over thirty-five million dollars as compared to the cost of tuberculosis; the value of dairy products, thirty-five million; corn, a little over twenty million; wheat, between ten and fifteen million; oats, a little over ten million; orchard products, ten million; potatoes, not quite ten million; tobacco, less than five million.

In computing the cost of tuberculosis each life has been estimated at three thousand dollars. The loss of earning power of the living cases has been estimated as seven and one-half dollars per week for one year; the expenditure attendant upon treatment and burial of each dying case at one hundred dollars, and the expenditure for special foods, medicines, medical attendance and nursing of each living case at fifty dollars. To these amounts has been added the actual money expended by the state and its municipalities, to be devoted exclusively to tuberculosis work, but no account has been taken of private contributions for such work.

This is a patient who gained over forty pounds during his stay at Mont Alto. After a gain of ten pounds no increase in weight was recorded until treatment was begun with biological products from the department's own laboratories. In a remarkably short time thirty additional pounds were gained.

When it is considered that the greatest number of deaths from tuberculosis occur in early adult and middle life, the economic value ($500) placed upon each death is very conservative. The majority of sociologists are inclined to place this figure higher ($1000).

One exhibit that is particularly instructive is a photograph of a certain house in Juniata county, shown on this page, which became infected with tuberculosis a little over ten years ago. During the ten years following the first infection, the house was occupied by three separate families, in none of which there had been any case of tuberculosis previous to their moving into this particular house. During the ten years not less than nine of the occupants of the house died of consumption, and the State Health Department has been able to trace eleven other people who, although still alive, are suffering from the disease, making a total of twenty cases for which the infected house is undoubtedly responsible. There are a number of other persons, members of the same families, concerning whom the authorities are in considerable doubt, and it is probable that some of them are developing tuberculosis. The peculiarities of the place are that it is in the open country and drained well, and in every way was an apparently ideal location. The construction of the house, however, like the construction of so many of the small farmhouses scattered throughout our state, is exceedingly faulty. On the western end there is but one small window, high up in the gable. In the eastern end conditions are the same, with on the northern and southern sides of the house there are but four windows and one door. For this reason it is impossible for the proper amount of air and light to enter. Hence, when infection of any kind is once established it is a most difficult matter to prevent its growth. Needless to say, the State Health Department, as soon as the matter was brought to light, had the place thoroughly disinfected, and it is still being watched most carefully by the county medical inspector and local health officers.

Special interest was taken by the tuberculosis experts from all over the globe, when they visited Washington, in the biological products which Pennsylvania in its own Department of Health Laboratories is producing for the treatment of tuberculosis in certain types of cases, and which, according to reports received, are giving favorable results. These products are shown in the present exhibit.

As early as 1839, Dr. Samuel O. Dixon, had given considerable attention to the possibility of developing a biological product which would have an immunizing and curative influence in tuberculosis infection. In that year, Dr. Dixon, in the Medical News of October 19, noted the existence of branched forms of tubercle bacilli, and prior to any similar observations ever published gave to the world his two important hypotheses in considering a means of overcoming the infection of tuberculosis.

First—it is possible, that by a thorough filtering out of bacilli from tubercular material, a filtrate might be obtained and attenuated, so that by systematic inoculation a change might be produced in living animal tissues that would enable them to resist virulent tubercle bacilli.

Second—To bring about a chemical or physical change in living tissues that would resist tubercular phagocytosis. It is possible that inoculations with the bacillus would have to be made; yet before this could be done, the power of the virulent bacilli would have to be diminished, otherwise the result would be disastrous.

Pennsylvania today occupies the unique position of producing in her own laboratories the biological products for use in tuberculosis that are the results of her own scientific research. Dr. Dixon states that the results which are apparently so favorable are being tabulated for publication as soon as they reach a number sufficiently large to warrant definite conclusions being drawn.

The two products are, first, a suspension of dead tubercle bacilli, referred to for the first time by Dr. Dixon in his article, "Possibility of Establishing Tolerance for the Tubercle Bacilli," in the Medical News of October 19, 1839, and second, a salt solution extracted from living tubercle bacilli, which is the same as "Fluid of Dixon," described in the Medical News of January 17, 1901.

HAS EXPERTS GUESSING.

Mill Girl Runs and Swims Like Trained Athlete.

Boston, Oct. 21.—Many acquaintances of Miss Margaret A. Graham, employed as a "reel" in one of the mills at Ludlow, believe she is the strongest woman in the country.

Although but nineteen years old she stands 5 feet 3 1/2 inches in her stockings, weighs 135 pounds and carries no superfluous flesh. Recently she threw a baseball 202 feet 6 inches and ran 100 yards in 1 1/2 seconds wearing skirts.

Miss Graham has smashed all the world's record time for a half-mile in this sport. One of her aquatic feats is a 100 foot swim in 23 seconds. All her records are for officially timed feats, and the apparent ease with which she has won different record events has caused coaches and experts to wonder what the limit of prowess of this gladiator may be when once she is put to her utmost strength test.

SAYS SHE WAS SLANDERED

Clubwomen's Gossip Brings About $100,000 Damage Suit.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Oct. 24.—Mrs. F. A. Sawyer, prominent in society in Canton, near here, filed a suit for $100,000 damages against fifteen women, formerly friends of hers and leaders in society. All concerned are members of a club which meets weekly and discusses various topics.

At a recent meeting Mrs. Sawyer read a paper which fifteen of the other members believed contained personal and unpleasant references to themselves. They wrote a letter to Mrs. Sawyer, demanding that she resign and telling her that if she did not they would have her expelled. They also, it is alleged, circulated stories about her and the suit filed was the result.

Captor of Escaped Murderer Receives Death Warning.

Monongahela, Pa., Oct. 24.—It was learned here that Daniel Williams, the flamer, who received $1,000 for capturing Charles Hickman, the wife murderer who escaped from Beaver county two weeks ago, has received an anonymous letter, threatening the lives of himself and family, and the destruction of his property.

The letter, written from Beaver county, states that through his act he has incurred the everlasting hatred of Hickman's friends and must suffer the consequences.

Chicago players get $29,561.31.

Each Philadelphia player, $1,327.21.

Each Cub player, $1,285.35.

Chicago, Oct. 24.—The Philadelphia Athletics are champions of the world. They won the title here by defeating the Cubs, champions of the National league, in the fifth game of the series by the score of 7 to 2.

The largest crowd that has ever attended a game on the Westside witnessed the downfall of their peers. The official figures given out by the national commission indicate that 27,374 people were present to witness the struggle. The total gate receipts were $37,116.50.

Brown Blows Up.

It was a pitchers' battle between Jack Coombs and Miner Brown, the three-fingered wonder, for seven innings. Then the once famous pitcher blew up and when the smoke had cleared away after the conclusion of the eighth inning five runs had been put over the plate by Connie Mack's team.

As in previous games, with the possible exception of Saturday's contest, when "King" Cole pitched, the Athletics outplayed and outbatted the Chicagoans.

Rooters Out in Force.

It put an end to a desperate battle as was fought on the West side and such rooting as marked the early innings had seldom been heard upon any field. The fans roared as only desperate fans could, who are watching a machine believed to be invincible being trampled upon by younger men.

The fans went wild as the Cubs scored in the second, and when the Athletics took the lead again, in the fifth the fans yelled and pleaded for the old guard to come back. But after that fatal eighth, they sat back to watch the work of the youthful machine, the one that triumphed over the old, which was looked upon as unbeatable.

Collins' Clouting Featured.

The hitting of Collins featured the attack of the Athletics. He drove out two doubles and a single and when the battle was won, third that he might display his speed.

And such weather. Had the members of the national commission consulted the managers of the two teams and then ordered the brand could have been no better. The sky was without a cloud, its color deep blue. The sun shone brilliantly.

Perfect Day For Baseball.

Only those who sat in the stands lining the first base way and the right field line suffered even the slightest chill. Those occupying seats in the old grand stand, the stand that runs along the left field line, and the bleachers basked in the sunlight and cheered even their light overcoats.

In a word, this day was perfect for even such a battle as the day foretold.

A good deal of kicking was done by the Cubs on the decisions of Umpires Sheridan and O'Day. One decision in particular was hotly disputed by Chance when Schulte was declared out stealing second in the fifth inning. Another dispute was caused by Sheridan declaring Hartzel safe in the eighth when he stole second. The Cubs and most of the crowd declared that he was out. However, Sheridan's ruling prevailed.

WOMAN IN BLACK TERRIFIES

Monongahela City, Pa., Greatly Stirred Over Vellied Provoker.

Monongahela City, Pa., Oct. 24.—Aroused over the appearance during the last week of a veiled woman dressed in black, who has caused many women to faint when she peeped into windows and in one instance seriously hurt a man and threw a hay over a fence, several hundred persons, nearly mobbed a young woman from Pittsburgh, when several boys cried "There is the woman in black!"

She was dressed in black, but was not the one who has created terror. Becoming frightened the young woman left the depot waiting room through a rear door and fled to the office of Alderman R. L. Ellwood. The crowd followed. Ellwood explained and the mob dispersed.

Chicago's Only Victory.

Chicago's only victory, the fourth game played, was a fine contest and was not decided until the tenth inning, when Archer for Chicago scored on Schulte's single after two were out. "King" Cole, pitching "bad" of the season, was selected by Manager Chance to hold the Athletics and the youngster did remarkably well. Pitted against him was "Chief" Bender, the Indian twirler, who had the National leaguers completely at his mercy on the opening day of the series. Bender was touched up pretty lively throughout the game and in the ninth inning he weakened to the extent that the Athletics were enabled to score out a victory. Cole was relieved in the eighth inning by Nordend Brown only because a pinch hitter batted for him. Strunk and Baker were the batting leaders for the Athletics, each getting three hits, while Schulte for Chicago also obtained three. Score by innings.

WHEN A MAN MARRIES

BY MARY ROBERTS RINEHART
AUTHOR OF "THE CIRCULAR STAIRCASE"
"THE MAN IN LOWER TEN, ETC."

"You'll do nothing of the kind," I snapped, catching him in time. "Don't you dare, Jimmy Wilson! Why, what would they think of me? After letting her call me Bella, and him—Jim, if Mr. Harbison ever learns the truth—I will take poison. If we are going to be shut up here together, we will have to carry it off. I could stand, the disgrace."

In spite of an heroic effort, Jim looked relieved. "They have been hunting for the linen closet," he said, more cheerfully, "and there will be room enough, I think, Harbison and I will hang out to the studio; there are two couches there, I'm afraid you'll have to take Aunt Selma, Kit."

"Certainly," I said coldly. "That was the way it was all along. Whenever there was something to do that no one else would undertake—either unpleasant responsibility—that entire household turned with one gesture and pointed its finger at me! Well, it is over now, and I ought not to be bitter, considering everything. It was quite characteristic of that memorable evening (that is quite novel, I think) that my interview with Jimmy should have a sensational ending. He was terribly down, of course, and as I was trying to pass him to get to the door, he caught my hand."

"You're a girl in a thousand, Kit," he said forlornly. "If I were not so damnably, hopelessly, idiotically in love with—somebody else, I should be crazy about you."

"Don't be maudlin," I retorted. "Would you mind letting my hand go?" I felt sure Bella could hear. "Oh, come now, Kit," he implored, "we're always going along so well. It's a shame to let a thing like this make us bad friends. Aren't you ever going to forgive me?"

"Never," I said promptly. "When I once got away, I don't want over to see you again. I was never so humiliated in my life. I loathe you!" Then I turned around, and, of course, there was Aunt Selma with her eyes protruding until you could have knocked them off with a stick, and beside her, very red and uncomfortable, Mr. Harbison!

"Bella!" she said in a shocked voice, "is that the way you speak to your husband? It is high time I came here, I think, and took a hand in this affair."

"Oh, never mind, Aunt Selma," Jim said, with a sheepish grin. "Kit—Bella is tired and nervous. This is a delicate situation. No—or—nervous, and all that."

But Aunt Selma did mind, and showed it. She pulled the unlucky Harbison man through the door and closed it, and then stood glaring at both of us.

"Every little quarrel is an apple knocked from the tree of love," she announced oratorically.

"This was a very little quarrel," Jim said, edging toward the door. "A green apple, Aunt Selma, a colloquy little green apple. But she was not to be diverted."

"Bella," she said severely, "you said you loathed him. You didn't mean that."

"But I do!" I cried hysterically. "There isn't any word to tell how I how I detest him!"

Then I swept past them all and flew to Bella's dressing room and locked myself in. Aunt Selma knocked until she was tired, then gave up and went to bed.

That was the night Anne Browne's pearl collar was stolen!

CHAPTER VI.

A Mighty Poor Joke.

Of course, one knows that there are people who in a different grade of society would be shoplifters and pickpockets. When they are restrained by obligation or environment they become a little overkeen at bridge, or take the wrong subway, or stuff a gold-backed brush into a muff at a reception. You remember the ivory dressing set that Theodore Ducknell had, fastened with fine gold chains? And the sensation it caused at the Ducknell cotillion when Mrs. Van Zin went sweeping to her carriage with two feet of gold chain hanging from the front of her waist?

But Anne's pearl collar was different. In the first place, instead of three or four hundred people, the suspicion had to be divided among ten. And of those ten, at least eight of us were friends, and the other two had been vowed for by the Browns and Jimmy. It was a horrible mix-up. For the necklace was gone—there couldn't be any doubt of that—and although, as Dallas said, it couldn't get out of the house, still, there were plenty of places to hide the thing.

The worst of our trouble really originated with Max Reed, after all. For it was Max who made the silly wager over the telephone, with Dick Hagley. He bet five hundred over that one of us, at least, would break quarantine within the next 24 hours, and, of course, that settled it. Dick told it around the club as a joke; and a man who owns a newspaper heard him, and called up the editor. Then the paper called up the health officer, after setting up a flaming scare-head. "Will Money Free Them? Word of Health versus Millionaire!"

It was almost three when the house settled down—nobody had any nightclothes, although faintly, through Dallas, who gave them to Anne, who gave them to the rest, we got some things

Supper and a nap, while I worried myself gray-headed about her!

"She came in unexpectedly—something about the butler," I explained under my breath. "And—she doesn't want to stay. She is on bad terms with some of the people upstairs. You can see how impossible the situation is."

"I doubt if we can get her out," he said, as if the situation were quite ordinary. "However, we can try. She seems very comfortable. It's a pity to rouse her."

Here the prisoner in the furnace room broke out afresh. It sounded as though he had taken a lump of coal and was attacking the lock. Mr. Harbison followed the noise, and I could hear him arguing, not gently.

"Another sound," he finished, "and you won't get out of here at all, unless you crawl on the furnace pipe!" When he came back, Bella was rousing. She lifted her head with her eyes shut and then opened them one at a time, blinked, and sat up. She didn't see him at first.

"You wretch!" she said ungratefully, after she had yawned. "Do you know what time it is? And that—"

Then she saw Mr. Harbison and sat staring at him.

"This is Mr. Harbison," I said to her hastily. "He came with Anne and Dad and—ho is shut in, too."

By that time Bella had seen how handsome he was, and she took a hair-pin out of her mouth, and arched her eyebrows, which was always Bella's best pose.

"I am Miss Knowles," she said sweetly (of course, the court had given her back her name), "and I stopped in tonight, thinking the house was empty, to see about a—butter. Unfortunately, the house was quarantined just at that time, and—here I am. Surely there cannot be any harm in helping me to get out?" (Pleading tone.)

"I have not been exposed to any contagion, and in the exhausted state of my health the confinement would be positively dangerous."

She rolled her eyes at him, and I could see she was making an impression. Of course she was free. She had a pocket key, and she knew what Mr. Harbison did to her, but I will say that Bella is a lot better looking by electric light than she is the next morning.

The upshot of it was that the gentleman who built bridges and looked down on society from a lofty, lonely pinnacle agreed to help one of the most gloaming members of the afore-said society to outwit the law.

It took about 15 minutes to quiet the policeman. Nobody ever knew what Mr. Harbison did to her, but for 24 hours he was quite tractable. He changed after that, but that comes later in the story. Anyhow, the Harbison man went upstairs and came down with a bagged curtain and a cushion to match, and took them into the furnace room, and came out and locked the door behind him, and then we were ready for Bella's escape.

But there were four special officers and three reporters watching the house as a result of Max Reed's idea. Once, after trying all the other windows and finding them guarded, we discovered a little bit of a hole in an out-of-the-way corner that looked like a ventilator and was covered with a heavy wire screen. No prisoners ever dug their way out of a dungeon with more energy than that with which we attacked that screen, backing it with kitchen knives, whispering like conspirators, being scratched with the ragged edges of the wire, frozen with the cold air one minute and boiling with excitement the next. And when the wire was out, and Bella had rolled her coat up and thrust it through, and was standing on a chair ready to follow, something outside that had looked like a barrel moved and said, "Oh, I wouldn't do that if I were you. It would be certain to be undignified, and probably it would be unpleasant."

We coaxed and pleaded and tried to bribe, and that happened, as it turned out, to be one of the worst things that we had to endure. For the whole conversation came out the next afternoon in the paper, with the most awful drawings, and a reporter said it was the fainting of the jewels we wore that first attracted his attention. And that brings me back to the robbery.

For when we had crept back to the kitchen, and Bella was fumbling for her handkerchief to dry her eyes, and the Harbison man was trying to apologize for the language he had used to the reporter, and I was on the verge of a nervous chill—well, it was then that Bella forgot all about crying and jumped and held out her arm.

"My diamond bracelet!" she shrieked. "Look, I've lost it!"

A NEW STUDY

One That Should Be Taught in Every Public School.

There is such a great difference between having a little money ahead of you and being perpetually "hard up" that it is a wonder that the science of thrift is not taught in every public school in the land. The day is rapidly approaching, however, when it will be considered just as much a duty to teach a child to be thrifty as to read and write. In the meantime, parents can give their children an object lesson in thrift by opening bank accounts for them. The child who has his own savings account and is taught to take care of his pennies, will know how to take care of dollars later on. Savings accounts may be opened at the First National Bank of Connellsville with $1.00 and the bank provides a little home safe free, in which the children can drop their pennies from time to time. Four per cent. interest is paid on all savings accounts.

It is hardly likely that Manager Schubert will have next week's bill at the season than the one beginning today, although he has some mighty good attractions in reserve for later in the season. It would be a hard matter to beat next week's records, with its three big shows—every one of them a New York success. The other two attractions will attract the popular priced patronage.

The choice of the three headliners of the week is a matter of taste, and the range is such that all tastes can be suited. From roaring farce comedy of the highest order to grim tragedy, all human emotions will find a ready response to these three shows.

The first attraction is "The Lottery Man," which comes to the season this evening. It is easy to discern the possibilities of a play in which the hero gives himself in marriage as the prize in the contest. Around this theme is woven one of the cleverest comedies the stage has seen for a number of years together with enough of a story to awaken dormant sentimentalities. The prevailing strain through "The Lottery Man" is laughter, with pathos, and a single relegated far into the background. "The Lottery Man" is still running in New York and will in all probability continue for the balance of the season. The company which has been sent on tour is fully up to the high standard established by the Shuberts whose production it is.

"Alas Jimmy Valentine" Thursday's offering is a love story with a lot of how features worked in. The scenic effects of this attraction are one of its big features. Its story is fully as interesting as that of "The Lottery Man," but along a different line. "Alas Jimmy Valentine" is more serious; comedy is of side-issue. It is the story of a reformed safe breaker, hounded by the police. The one big act in which the safe breaker saves his chance of freedom is to open a safe and rescue the little sister of his sweetheart. "Alas Jimmy Valentine" is a melodrama, but it is the highest order. Generally, the play might be likened to "The Thief," "Leah Kleschna" and other big productions of a like nature, although it is entirely different.

"Madame X" is the final offering of the week and perhaps the best. It is Henry W. Savage's first production here this season, and Colonel Savage can be depended upon to present something out of the ordinary. "Madame X" is entirely different, and that is one reason the play made such a decided hit in New York. The play is by Alexandre Bisson, a French author, and grim tragedy is the underlying theme. Incidentally Connellsville is the only Fayette county town that will see "Madame X" on its present tour.

The gallery gods will rejoice Friday night on the return of "Billy the Kid." This is a real melodrama of the first water and it is whispered that the show holds at least one record. It uses more blank cartridges than any other troupe on tour in this section.

Tuesday night the "High Flyers" return to the season. This is their second trip this season. Connellsville has been "easy picking" for the troupe because for the past several seasons. The one redeeming feature of the return of the "High Flyers" is the hope that the chorus may be slightly better drilled than on its initial appearance.

STORIES OF THE PRESS AGENTS

The Lottery Man Tonight.

"The Lottery Man" which ran for eight nights at the Bijou Theatre, New York, will be the season's highlight offering at the season.

Theatre tonight, when Rida Johnson Young's comedy will have its first local hearing. During the past season, Mrs. Young has made rapid strides as a writer of comedy, having done the book for Lulu Glaser's success, "Just One of the Boys," one of two vaudeville sketches and "The Lottery Man," the most promising and refreshing comedy that New York has seen for many years. It is believed that the Shuberts have put together one of the best acting companies that has played in a place of the lighter vein since the days of the Hoyt forces.

The day of the "slap-stick" burlesque has passed if we may judge from the press comments on "The High Flyers" who will be the attraction at the season Theatre Tuesday night, October 25. The management of the organization promises a company of thirty five artists called from the leading burlesque companies, and who are well and favorably known throughout the country, including a chorus for which the comeliness of its tentative members has rarely been equaled. A leading feature will be Princess Rialler, the wonderful dancer, who has scored a complete triumph at the New York Roof Gardens during the past summer and who was for two years the reigning star of the French vaudevilles in Paris.
